

I am adamantly opposed to allowing cell phone usage on commercial aircraft. Being trapped for hours in a metal tube next to some moron who is unable to resist using their cell phone would become unbearable, and will lead to individuals arguing with seatmates, perhaps even to increased violence onboard aircraft -endangering everyone, increasing the workload on flight attendants, and making air travel even less appealing than it already is. I will stop flying (no joke) and use other modes of transportation if this is allowed.
